THE FIRST LEASE . . . David May (left) looks on as Arthur S. Roseberg, senior vice president of Food Fair and president of Fox Markets, Inc., signs first lease for a supermarket in California by Food Fair. The national food chain has acquired the 27 Fox Super Markets in Southern California as a cornerstone of a major West Coast operation, officials of the giant food retailing firm announced. The lease being signed here is for a site in the new Topanga Plaza Shopping Center being developed by the May Company.

Food Fair Acquires Fox Markets

Food Fair Markets, fifth largest food chain in the United States, has acquired 27 Fox Super Markets in Southern California as the cornerstone of a projected major operation on the West Coast.

This announcement came from Arthur S. Roseberg, senior vice president of Food Fair and president of Fox, who said that the parent chain is in the process of an extensive expansion program which calls for the leasing, construction, and acquisition of additional supermarkets primarily in California.

Food Fair sales for fiscal 1963 exceeded $1 billion, Roseberg said. The chain now operates more than 550 food department stores in Eastern and Southern states, including New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Delaware, Maryland, Georgia and Florida, and with recent acquisitions, in California and Nevada.

The Fox chain, in addition to its 27 complete supermarkets, operates 7 food markets in Discount Department Stores and 5 Fox Drug Stores. The company began operations in Southern California nearly 10 years ago.

Roseberg said the transition program for the Fox stores to assume the Food Fair name, now under way, will be completed no later than spring of 1964.

First construction project scheduled by Food Fair officials is in a major shopping center development in Topanga Plaza in Canoga Park, where other tenants will include Montgomery Ward, May Company, and The Broadway.

Roseberg said the acquisition will serve as a nucleus for future West Coast expansion, and that the Food Fair credo of quality merchandise at daily low shelf prices will be carried out here.

"California was the birthplace of the giant supermarket as we know it today in America," he said, "and the population and industrial trend westward further enhances the company's economic opportunities."

He pointed out that these factors influenced Food Fair's decision to establish a West Coast operation, and that the entry of the billion-dollar chain would contribute heavily to the explosive economic growth situation here.

Board Sets Session On Data Processing

Trustees of the Torrance Unified School District will hold a special meeting Tuesday at noon to discuss possible updating of the district's records-keeping procedures.

The meeting was requested by members of the board in order to discuss a report on a data processing system for the district with members of a special committee which prepared the report.

The report, prepared after a study of the district records department by Dr. Wallace Mueller of the University of Southern California, recommended a punch-card system as the first step toward a complete data processing system.

DISTRICT OFFICIALS have eyed the possibility of a new records system for some time. They contend it would improve the district's ability to maintain complete and accurate records with a minimum of time.

The special committee recommended the district lease data equipment for a card punch system. Estimated cost of the system would be about $1,200 per month. Such a system would allow the district office to evaluate the records keeping procedure and proceed or withdraw from the program following periodic evaluation.

Following the meeting on the data processing system report, the board will adjourn to the offices of the Chamber of Commerce for an informal session with chamber directors. The meeting will be devoted to a discussion of a recent report on the Torrance schools by the chamber's school affairs committee.
